OSHA Safe and Sound Campaign

OSHA and co-sponsors NSC, AIHA, ASSE and NIOSH are organizing the first annual Safe + Sound Week on June 12-18, devoted to promoting proactive safety and health program activities. The goal of the program is to raise awareness and understanding of the value of safety and health programs among workplaces, as well as encourage their voluntary adoption and implementation.

To participate, employers undertake activities or plan events involving at least one, but preferably all three, of the core elements of a safety and health program:

1. Management leadership
2. Worker participation

3. Find and fix workplace hazards

You can find more information about OSHA's Safe and Sound Campaign here.

Tips To Protect Young Workers

A young worker gets injured on the job every nine minutes! Many workers under the age of 25 enter the workforce before they have developed a foundation of job skills. Take the first steps towards keeping workers of all ages safe by checking out these tips.

- Stay updated with age-appropriate labor laws. If you are employing anyone under the age of 18, it must comply with child labor laws. These vary according to federal and state guidelines.
- Provide a solid foundation. Workers under the age of 25 are likely starting their first job with you, therefore, you have the responsibility of keeping them safe in a new environment and delivering a solid base of training.
- Mentor the youth. Train workers right, the first time, by providing them with a workplace mentoring program.
- Communication. Keep tabs on young workers and explain safety rules and concepts frequently.
- Offer other learning opportunities. Classes like an OSHA 10-hour training session or incorporating different learning materials can promote safety with this age group.
